Crops & Vegetables

At AGONABA Farms, our Crops and Vegetables Department is committed to cultivating high-quality produce through sustainable and climate-smart agricultural practices. We focus on both staple and market-driven crops that serve local communities and support food security.

MAIZE

A staple food crop widely grown for both human consumption and animal feed. Our maize is cultivated using improved seed varieties and best agronomic practices for high yields.

CASSAVA

Grown extensively for both fresh consumption and industrial processing, our cassava serves as a raw material for our processing brands: Cassava Gold and AsaaseRoots.

PLANTAIN

Cultivated under shaded systems and intercropped with other crops to optimize land use and improve soil fertility.

CHILLI PEPPER

One of our high-value crops, cultivated for local markets and export demand, with careful attention to quality, pest control, and post-harvest handling.

TOMATO

Grown under controlled conditions, our tomatoes are selected for their shelf life, taste, and market preference, ensuring freshness from farm to market.

CABBAGE

Our cabbage is cultivated with integrated pest management techniques and nutrient-rich soils, offering a reliable supply of fresh, crisp produce for households, schools, markets, and bulk buyers.

We continue to adopt improved farming technologies, irrigation systems, and training programs to empower our workers, especially women and youth, to ensure consistent supply and top-quality produce across the country.

The Future is Rooted in the Land— and We're Cultivating It Boldly.

At AGONABA Farms, we are redefining what it means to farm in Ghana. Our journey into value-added agriculture has begun with bold, purposeful steps—starting with cassava. Through our state-of-the-art cassava processing facility, we are already producing high-quality Gari, starch, and tapioca, while exploring the development of animal feed made from cassava peels—a sustainable solution that turns waste into opportunity.

But this is only the beginning.

Next on our roadmap is plantain processing, as we build the AsaaseRoot brand into a household name. From there, we'll scale into powdered pepper, maize-based innovations, and the full range of crops cultivated on our farms. Each step is guided by our commitment to innovation, food security, and rural economic empowerment.

We are not just farming—we are creating a movement.

A movement that transforms raw produce into premium products.

A movement that empowers women, creates jobs, and drives rural development.

A movement that is ready to scale—with the right partners.

With modern infrastructure, a clear vision, and a passionate team, AGONABA Farms is open to strategic partnerships and collaborations that align with our mission to build a resilient, profitable, and inclusive agribusiness ecosystem.

Join us. Let's grow Ghana's future—together.
